Why We Exist

Space Grotesk
(headline/body)

Drafting Mono
(subhead/accent)

The games industry, in its current form, is not sustainable.

You've all heard the stories of mass layoffs at your favorite studios - both when a project is going poorly, AND when it goes incredibly well. The crunch at the end of every project. Uprooting your family every few years to chase the next job. Colleagues who burn out and go to write dental software instead.

We believe a better system is possible. With stable, transparent funding, community support, and creative freedom, we can make the industry better for all the people that love it. We believe games are an art form, players can and should be invested partners, and people are the games industry's greatest resource.
